House.

U.S. Senator Conrad Burns was escorted to the rostrum by the escort committee.

Pastor Keith Johnson of the Evangelical Covenant Church gave the Invocation.

After being presented to the members of both houses by President Beck, Montana's U.S. Senator the Honorable Conrad Burns delivered the following address:

Congratulations on your election to the Montana House and the Senate. Thank you for serving our state in these halls. You are the latest edition of those who have gone before us. To those who are here for the first time, welcome and good luck to you. Your learning curve will turn up sharply—but knowing a little bit about the folks who seek public office and are successful, you will be up to it.

I can recall the Wednesday after the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November 1988. In the first place, my wife would not believe that we had won until she read it in the newspaper that morning. Can you imagine that! It did not take long for reality to set in. I had 2 years of experience as a county commissioner in Yellowstone County, and I was in deep trouble. I called on a friend - one who was serving in this body - Jack Ramirez. From that point on, through the 101st Congress, it was like trying to drink from a fire hydrant.

Harry Truman had a quote that after being elected to the U. S. Senate, he spent the first months trying to find out how he got there. Then he said, “I spent the next 6 months trying to figure out how everybody else got there...”

Again, I welcome you to the legislative process. Again I thank you for caring about our state enough to place your name and ego on a ballot. There are those who will not - they are just like old hounds that set on a burr and would rather growl about it than get up and move.

There are generations of young folks who are yet to come, that will be affected by what we do here today. After all, isn't that the reason we are all here. We have always been a society who have worked for the next generation, and we still are. We have seen 8 years of unprecedented economic growth in America. It is true that rural states like our own have not enjoyed the degree of growth that other areas of the country have. We were light years away from being in any kind of position to take advantage of the new economy. Today, we have made great strides and we have just seen the tip of the iceberg in our transition to that new economy.

How we learn and how we manage health care in rural areas are changing and will continue to change. But, we are reminded everyday of the importance of our traditional resource based economy, which has sustained us throughout the years. The old and the new can co-exist, and we cannot transition without our traditional industries.

We have a crisis that is of historic proportions. No one here today has ever experienced anything like it – it is energy—it is electricity—it is natural gas—it is oil—it is coal. It is how we irrigate our crops, deliver our state's great agriculture production, how we receive the goods and services. In other words, our surface and air transportation. It is how we make our living. It is a challenge that must be met, as affordable energy has more to do with economic growth than any other factor of our every day life.

At this very moment, there is one law in this country that is working. It is the law of supply and demand. I have always believed that Montana will remain an energy producing state. Clearly we have the resources to help power America's economy and capture the financial advantage of doing so while investing in our local communities.

HOUSE JOURNAL
SEVENTH LEGISLATIVE DAY - JANUARY 10, 2001

We must do more with electricity in our homes. I just returned from attending the consumer electronics association and believe me, the direction we are demanding our appliances to do for us, what we expect our computers to do and what we are demanding on how we entertain ourselves - is it any wonder we have outstripped our ability to generate enough power to satisfy the demand.

It is in times like these we call for conservation, but conservation alone cannot head off this crisis. We can, and will, get serious about conservation. We did it when our gas supplies were threatened some 25 years ago. We conserved. We also accelerated our exploration and lifting capabilities. We were way too successful in our capabilities to explore, find, and produce.

We simply have outgrown our supply and delivery system. The American economy is slowing and it is clear to me the high cost of energy is the determining factor. No segment of the American economy has so much effect on all other segments like affordable energy.

Are there immediate solutions to this crisis? No, there is not, but the American people are not convinced that we are in a true shortage of electrical power. They are not convinced that we cannot generate enough to satisfy the demand. I am convinced when I look at our present day generation capabilities—also our ability to distribute and deliver. We must meet the challenge. We have no other choice.

If we are serious about the working families in Montana who look to us for policies that provide the jobs and economic opportunities, then we need to look at the real world. If we are serious about protecting the most vulnerable among us, our working poor and our elderly, then we need to look at the real world. First of all, Montana has always been an energy producing state. We must assume that leadership once again. We can supply what it takes to power America's economy.

While doing so, we are taking advantage of the financial resources it takes to pay for our schools, our demand for government services, in public safety, in the transportation infrastructure, and the building of a new infrastructure for a new economy and a new brighter future.

The investment costs of siting have sky rocketed. Those costs can be the difference between a new generation or a crisis. The environment is important and no one here would advocate doing anything in a irresponsible manner. Oil and gas development have seen technological advances that greatly reduce the surface impact associated with production - clean coal advances have greatly reduced emissions and are on the verge of being feasible allowing us to utilize Montana's great reserves.

Looking to the future, fuel cell development is coming closer to reality and the money I have earmarked for fuel cell development here in Montana, places the state in a great position to lead the revolution, or as some would put it, this evolution of energy development. Ethanol development has been slow, but we know it will be part of the energy mix of the future. Solar and wind power will also be part of that, and who better to lead the way than Montana.

The latest actions taken by the federal government on forest lands is just one example of how wrong thinking has dealt a fatal blow to us here in Montana on forest health and the forest products industry. It goes way beyond just the forest products industry. It goes to the siting of communications towers necessary for wireless broadband services - and crossing those lands with fiber to serve rural and remote areas.

These actions destroy any opportunity to bring new services and new opportunities to remote areas of Montana.

We have just passed legislation that will enable low power television spectrum to be used to deploy wireless broadband services to rural areas where we have a lot of dirt between light bulbs.

Just because you are a kid, born in one of our many small communities in Montana, does not mean that where you live should determine the quality of education and medical care received.

President Beck asked the committee to escort U.S. Senator Burns from the House Chamber.

Senator Thomas moved the joint session be adjourned. Motion carried.

Members of the Senate retired from the House Chamber.

Thank you and good evening. It is a privilege to be here before the Fifty-Seventh Legislative Assembly. Lt. Governor Ohs, President Beck, Speaker McGee, my fellow Constitutional Officers, Tribal Chairmen, distinguished members of the Legislature, members of the Montana Supreme Court, honored guests, my fellow Montanans:

So many of us here today are newly installed and freshly sworn into our respective offices. Many of us will be viewed as the first experiment resulting from sweeping term limits.

Regardless of the length of tenure, we share the same feelings of opportunity, challenge and responsibility. Before I begin, I want to take the time to thank one special group in the audience. They serve without term limits. They are always there for me -- even when I'm away. My husband, Harry, our son Justin and daughter Stacy and their families -- you make it possible for me to stand here tonight: the first female governor of the State of Montana.

I am proud to be a small businesswoman. I'm proud to serve as your governor. But I'll always be most proud to be "Mom" and "Mrs. Harry Martz." Those are the titles that will endure. And to my mom and dad -- Joe and Dorothy Morstein, who are at home in Billings tonight, I want to say thank you for teaching me to work hard, be honest and remain strong in faith.

We are here to do the people's business. Our actions will define us. So let us go forward, without hesitation to do our best and to do what is right for the good of all Montanans. Our actions will favorably define us if we speak after having listened, deciding based on principles, and acting in humility, with respect for all, remembering that a power greater than ourselves will have the final word.

Teddy Roosevelt said, "The credit belongs to the one who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs and comes short again and again, who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions, and spends himself in a worthy cause; who at best, knows the triumph of high achievement; and who, at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat."

The Martz Administration will call it the way it is. We will not shy away from shortcomings of the past. We will not pretend things are better or worse than they are. But we will address the challenges with optimism and determination. Montana's people expect nothing less.

Let me be very clear. I speak for Montana. I speak for government. I speak for the people. We all contribute to the state of our state.

Overall, our economy continues to grow. Our total personal income increased more than five-percent in the last year. And that's more than twice the rate of inflation. Only two segments of our economy did not see increases in earnings. Every other sector is doing better.

We have gained more than one hundred and seven thousand jobs in the past ten years. Compare that to the 1980's when jobs grew by only 43,000. We're growing -- but not as fast as we can -- not as fast as we should. That's the difference. And we know it.

We know that we have work to do. We must do better. We can do better. We will not rest until Montana's economy reflects the diversity and capacity of the people within it. The Martz Administration's primary goal is to diversify our economy, expand our job market with higher paying jobs, actively supporting and recruiting businesses that can thrive within our current environmental standards.

I want to be crystal clear. I promised the people of Montana that I would not support a tax increase. I will keep my word. If the people of Montana want tax increases, I'll respect their decision made in voting booth -- but I will not sign a general tax increase. Period.

We must lower the top marginal tax rates that are bad for business. We must eliminate income taxes for the hardworking Montanans on the lowest rung of the economic ladder. The business equipment tax must be eliminated, and I'll work to make sure we achieve the growth threshold that will make it happen. By the time I face voters again, they will be keeping more of what they earn.

Two Montana communities are proving that economic growth benefits everyone. They stand out for their success in expanding their economy. Sidney, Montana shouldn't be doing well right now. It's situated in a region that statistics say should be losing population, jobs and their tax base. But Sidney would not allow what was to stay as is.

Although struggling today, Holly Sugar Refinery has an annual payroll of $5.7 million. Trains haul thousands of tons in sugar, beet pulp and beet molasses from the plant every year. Sidney Millwork Company, a state of the art mill that employs 50 people, manufactures and installs cabinets and furnishings for hospitals, school districts and municipalities nationwide. Sidney has committed to maintaining its agricultural research station second to none.

Sidney is also the new home to the Moo Juice Dairy -- Montana's first industrial dairy that opened last summer. The 20-employee dairy can milk 1,200 cows at one time, transport milk to cheese factories and milk processors throughout the Midwestern United States. By next fall Moo Juice will double its employees and its capacity to milk twice as many cows. Wisconsin had better watch out.

Sidney has taken its traditional strength in agriculture and tailored it to a hi-tech world. Sidney defied statistics that labeled the region unsuccessful and is proving that statistics follow actions. And labels will change to reflect actions.

We must rise every day with the determination to move forward toward our goal, cognizant of what was, but with purpose and perseverance toward what we know can be.

Butte, Montana was the heart of our country's mining industry for decades. Yet, it has not allowed a diminishing demand for copper and other minerals to defeat them. MSE Technology Applications in Butte employs about 200 employees and contracts with NASA space centers and several Department of Defense facilities. Advanced Silicon Materials chose Butte as home to its multimillion-dollar poly-silicon-processing plant, employing more than 200 engineers and technicians. The Butte-Silver Bow Development Authority worked with ASMi to direct property taxes to help build a high tech economy for an old mining town.

These are just two success stories of regions of our state that could have settled with less but instead determined to do more. Sidney and Butte are examples for all of us. They are reminders that the potential for greatness resides in every corner of this state and in each one of us.

Our pursuit of economic growth must include Native Americans. For the first Montanans, I am committed to improving the quality of life on our reservations. Next month, I'll issue a proclamation calling for government-to-government consultation on the many issues that impact tribal members. Additionally, I have pledged to visit every reservation in Montana by the end of summer to better understand their needs, but more importantly their culture.

In the meantime, please send to my desk immediately HB 165, which will ensure the return of human remains to our Indian nations. There is nothing more sacred than burial and nothing more meaningful than our faith in a higher power. No matter what color you are -- human remains belong with families.

We begin our administration in a building that has been restored to the magnificence it displayed more than a century ago. Let us, each one of us, pledge tonight to choose each word and every action to suit the dignity and grace that surrounds us.

The Capitol restoration project exemplifies partnership. The executive and legislative branch joined with citizens and businesses to take care of Montana's "crown jewel" after years of neglect and degradation. From the roof to the heart of the mechanical systems -- from the landscaping to the furnishings, we invested twenty-six million public and private dollars. It truly reflects our heritage and is equipped to serve us well into the future. For beneath the floors and walls, the Capitol enters the 21st century with state of the art wiring for computers and telecommunications. Eventually, we will be able to use the Internet for making legislative proceedings available to every home connected to the Web in the state of Montana, nation and world.

HOUSE JOURNAL

Please take a moment to honor a special group of citizens who made this successful -- Former Governor Marc Racicot, Restoration Commission Chairman Mike Cooney, Betty Babcock, (a permanent "First Lady" as far as I'm concerned). Also, thank you to the Legislature and numerous professionals, the Capitol Restoration Foundation, and even Montana schoolchildren who sent their pennies for the "Copper for the Capitol Fund." All Montanans did something important to restore the "people's house."

Martin Luther King, Jr. said, "The ultimate measure of a man is not where he stands in moments of comfort, but where he stands at times of challenge and controversy." Montanans stand tall when we take a measure of those who battled in one way or another against wildfire last summer.

We survived one of the worst natural disasters in the history of Montana. More than 11,000 firefighters from numerous states battled to protect cities and homes. Volunteers too numerous to count contributed mightily to the effort. Never before on American soil has such a large army fought a single enemy. Help came from as far away as New Zealand and Australia. Nearly 950,000 acres burned; 321 structures were destroyed, including 66 homes. At one point, nearly 4,000 homes were threatened.

The Montana Army and Air National Guard provided support to 12 major fires last summer. Montana activated nearly 2,000 troops -- Army and Air Guard -- supporting us with medical services, security, transportation, evacuation, firefighting in the air and on the ground.

People spent nights on rooftops with garden hoses in hand to fight an enemy that would not sleep and seemed, at times, unquenchable. The Mennonites came from all over the United States and Canada to Broadwater County to help ranchers recover. High school students left the classroom to pitch in, putting up more than 20 miles of fencing.

With time, valuable resources and possessions will be replaced. For some things, it will take as long as a generation. But we will remember fire's lesson: Our survival in a fragile ecosystem depends upon careful stewardship and ultimately the grace of God.

Let's take a moment to thank and honor those who fought fire in a multitude of ways, whether on the front line or behind the scenes, to preserve what we cherish. Let's thank them and our Lord for sparing every human life during a very dangerous and drawn out ordeal.

We expect a seat at the table in planning how to effectively manage the forests we recreate in and rely upon. We will urge the Bush Administration to listen to the West, and return stewardship responsibility to our capable hands where it belongs. And we will not rest until our voices are heard.

As chairman of the State Land Board our vigilant stewardship of the state's 5.2 million acres of school trust lands continues. This provides a wide variety of opportunities for natural resource development and sustainability of traditional management activities generating nearly fifty million dollars for education while practicing good stewardship. Managing such a broad landscape and diversity of potential uses can attract many contrary opinions.

However, I'm proud to say, Montana's Natural Resource team is up to the challenge. The way we are addressing the

Sula State Forest Timber salvage operation is the perfect example. Before the smoke even cleared, the department initiated the public involvement process, developed a plan of action, analyzed the impacts and completed a MEPA review and quickly awarded contracts for the salvage of nearly 25 million board feet of fire-scorched timber.

Today more than 150 loggers, timber fallers, equipment operators and truck drivers are employed on this project which will ultimately generate nearly $5 million dollars for the school trusts from sale of the blackened timber -- all while implementing aggressive erosion control measures, stabilizing fragile soils and facilitating reforestation. Land management decisions in the 21st century are complex and oftentimes controversial but we must proceed. Montana should lead in making decisions about managing our land.

We will never forget the industries that built this state -- and I support environmentally safe mining, timber-harvest and oil and gas production on our public lands.

With two presidential disaster declarations for fire and drought last year, we are determined to steer Montana away from an energy disaster threatening to be exported to the rest of the western states from California. The 57th legislative session must adjourn with a solid blueprint for energy, addressing short-and long-term needs.

Senator Royal Johnson is sponsoring legislation that may serve as the vehicle to take us to a reliable and affordable destination in energy pricing and supply. As the legislature conducts hearings on this bill, I want to outline crucial points that we expect to be included when it reaches my desk. Profit is a good thing, but not to the extent that it would leave the state that produced it in the dark or out in the cold. This is a problem that pervades the entire western wholesale market and it cannot be solved without a coordinated regional plan. Acting otherwise will simply make the problem worse for every state in this region.

I have joined with other governors of the West in calling for the creation of an interstate, interagency team to develop a regional plan to satisfy our collective needs. All of us on the western grid need to participate. We must share the responsibility of building more generation plants with adequate fuel supply, electrical transmission facilities, gas pipelines, and properly deal with the inherent environmental challenges.

I have appointed a task force on energy prices, made up of Montanans who are experts in their respective fields, representing a broad array of energy producers, consumers, cooperatives and suppliers. They will advise our administration on energy policy and make recommendations on short-and long-term solutions to the energy pricing and supply challenges we face.

We must increase the supply of power through more generating facilities. We should diversify, wherever possible, our sources of fuel. For example: natural gas, coal, and renewable resources such as wind and solar energy. We should unite, all of us, to look for ways to streamline the permitting process, allowing construction of new facilities to be built within a more reasonable time frame, but also within the parameters of our stringent environmental standards. The Major Facility Siting Law process can and should be faster, and we can more efficiently process permits under the Montana Environmental Policy Act.

The 1997 Legislature demonstrated leadership by protecting Montana consumers from price changes until July 1, 2002. Other states in our region that did not do so are experiencing what our legislature protected us from. Still, Montana law should be changed to extend the transition period for customer choice for the time necessary to obtain the best power price for customers and give investors the time to bring new facilities on line.

In the near-term, the industrial customers and the generators of electricity should enter into contracts for power supply, perhaps with incentives from the PSC or the State. The price of electricity will increase after July 1, 2002, but it must be reasonable. Suppliers should recover their costs, plus a reasonable profit. The California prices of today are not being set by a competitive marketplace and are unrealistic because they are not a result of long-term supply contracts, but are set on a daily spot market. Competition will work, but we cannot be halfway in and halfway out. A viable federal energy policy is needed -- and we'll be at the table to hold them accountable, while doing our part.

We are improving the state's physical infrastructure. We are strengthening our relationships with local economic development organizations as well as increasing Montana's profile internationally. But we need to do more. That's why I'm drafting legislation to reform the Department of Commerce to make it more supportive of economic growth and expansion. We also plan to open a Montana office in Washington from which we can more effectively work with our delegation and Congress to accomplish our agenda.

Government can no longer be a barrier to business development -- and I will not leave this office until we've made it business friendly. We have laid the groundwork for future economic growth through our Jobs and Opportunities initiative. We're working to eliminate the roadblocks to creating and growing technology businesses in the state.

We are teaching our companies the tricks of competition for venture capital and we are beginning to see results -- since 1999, Montana businesses have garnered $1.5 million in awards benefiting employees in Belgrade, Ronan, and Browning as well as Butte, Billings, Bozeman and other Montana communities. These awards translate into more and better paying jobs. We need to continue to work with diligence to use these funds to their maximum potential.

Furthermore, the new Research and Commercialization Board offers an excellent balance of scientific credentials and business sense, demonstrating that research is a state priority.

I am also pleased to report that 100% of the state has local dial-up connection to the Internet. High-speed cable modem and DSL services are being deployed not only in Montana's large population centers but also in remote communities with populations of 1,000 people or less.

The Advanced Telecommunications Infrastructure Act passed in the last legislative session has helped accelerate the growth of high-speed telecommunications infrastructure throughout the state. The tax credits issued under the Telecommunications Act will keep us in the forefront.

Elimination of geography as a business issue means more and better jobs for Montanans statewide. Thomas Jefferson said that, "A democratic society depends for its strength on the free flow of information and an informed electorate." The possibilities are endless. With our new E-Government initiative, citizens will be able to dial up to find out about the expenditures of their tax dollars, register to vote, make their views known to elected officials, and obtain licenses and permits online.

We must make sure that we identify these opportunities and make them available to all Montanans. Our administration encourages pioneering efforts such as the Montana Information Technology Act -- sponsored by Senator Mike Taylor, which would emphasize Information Technology in our state. Senator, thank you for your determined leadership.

Our sister-state relationships with Kumamoto, Japan, and Taiwan have given Montanans cultural and educational opportunities with ever-growing economic trade opportunities for Montana businesses. Our new sister-state relationship with Guangxi, China will help us build close cultural understandings and economic ties with over one billion Chinese consumers. We are becoming an important player in one of the most significant economic arenas in the world. And, as co-chair of the Montana-Alberta Boundary Advisory Committee, I will work diligently with Lieutenant Governor Ohs to build better relations and economic opportunities with our Canadian neighbors.

As we open markets and opportunities for our citizens, we cannot forget that the best investment Montana makes in the future economy is through education. Montana annually invests over $6,200 in each student in our primary and secondary schools, or nearly $80,000 per child during their school years. In fact, the budget I submitted to the legislature puts six out of every ten general fund dollars into Montana's world-class education system. We must make sure our schools remain world-class.

HOUSE JOURNAL

The last legislature provided the single largest increase in education spending in the history of our state, and the May special session increased it by an additional twenty million dollars for this school year. We propose an additional three percent increase in fiscal year 2003.

Investment in secondary students is increasing, even while enrollments continue to drop. I want accountability in our schools, which is why we are moving forward on annual testing of grades 4, 8 and 11, and compiling and disseminating results. For the first time, parents and communities will be able to compare their schools to other schools and really know where they stand.

Test scores are steady, showing Montana eighth graders are first in science. They out-performed every other state in science, in every assessment. We're in the top five in math and reading.

We are also in the top ten in writing. The Martz Administration will name a task force to recommend a plan for boosting our writing scores toward the top five by 2005. We are pleased with the recommendations of a task force that developed a Native American curriculum through OPI and reservation schools. I appreciate Representative Carol Juneau's efforts to make education relevant to all Montana schools, including reservations. She's offering good ideas and we should pay attention to them.

My administration will focus on four key areas of early education:

1. Increasing resources and teacher development; 2. Producing excellence with partnerships to mentor our kids; 3. Providing safe learning environments; and, 4. Implementing character education.

To accomplish any of our education objectives, we must recognize the importance of what I call my 3-Rs of education: recruiting, retaining and rewarding outstanding teachers. There is no more noble profession, no pursuit more valuable to the future of our state than positively shaping children's lives. Society receives no greater gift than those who are willing to teach our children. I am so fortunate to have 6 teachers in my own family, with my daughter and son-in-law planning to be teachers.

But every day we lose outstanding teachers and administrators to other states that offer better pay and benefits. According to OPI, every year only 1/3 of the nearly 1300 newly certified teachers actually start teaching in Montana schools. Furthermore, 40 elementary school districts expressed problems recruiting certified elementary educators last year while shortages for many high school subjects affected even more districts.

If we are going to keep these professionals, Montana must begin to seriously compete with over 20 other states that are making major investments to lure teachers away from our Montana students. We want to leverage our share of the $2.4 billion in increased federal funds that President Bush has promised states for training new teachers. We'll partner with the private sector to craft mentoring programs that inspire teachers to stay in the profession. And I'll build partnerships with teachers, parents and administrators to craft a performance-based pay proposal called Investing in Teaching Excellence. Under this proposal, local districts will work to reward the successful completion of performance goals set by each teacher with their administrator. We'll reward the best teachers who meet their goals and give districts flexibility to pay for it.

Additionally, we'll support mentoring programs such as "Aim High" which has been initiated by the Montana High School Association and Montana's Promise where already we have mentored over 73,000 Montana young people when our goal was just 10,000. I just joined the national board of Jobs for American Graduates. I will encourage churches to provide after-school programs for children to more freely practice their faith in a learning environment. Today, the American Dream depends on a high school diploma, and our administration will help every Montana child earn one.

For higher education, we expect the university system to reduce the tuition burden on our students with the $100 per student per year allocation included in our budget for the next biennium. We've targeted $800,000 for a two-year program to train students for new business. And finally, we have earmarked $2 million dollars in additional funds for student assistance.

Indeed, education is a key to building a better economy and bringing better paying jobs to Montana, and only by working together can we make great things happen in education. It's as simple as A-B-C.

Even Montana's National Guard is providing positive options in education for youth at-risk. Since being authorized by the 56th Legislature, the Montana Youth ChalleNGe program has graduated 217 youth who had previously dropped out of high school in their local communities.

These 217 graduates have entered Montana's job market, enrolled in college or joined the military. Of these graduates, 167 (76%) have earned their General Education Diploma - compared against a 44% national GED success rate for youth in the same age bracket.

The ChalleNGe success is typified by one graduate currently holding a 3.78 G.P.A. in a university honors program, and another who graduated number 1 out of 560 candidates at Marine Corps basic training.

Welfare reform has made great strides in overcoming the myth that parents on welfare don't want to work. We must expand our successful child-care programs for low-income families. We have a bill in the legislature that will buy used state vehicles and sell them to participants in Families Achieving Independence in Montana at an affordable price and reasonable payment schedule.

Welfare reform doesn't end with a reduction in recipients. The Martz Administration is committed to helping more people climb higher on the economic ladder. Expanded childcare assistance is a critical concern as are expanded job training options and transportation.

We collected a record high fifty million dollars in child support during the past year. We enhanced enforcement of medical support for children, saving 1.5 million dollars in Medicaid each year.

Clinics and health care facilities report 94.4% of the children coming in are immunized and more good news...Montana's teen pregnancy rate is dropping faster than the national average, dropping 19% in nine years. We know that means tremendous savings for our health and human services down the road -- let's keep working to teach our children the virtues of abstinence.

Because our community hospitals are the lifeblood of many of our small towns, I made sure that we included provider rate increases in our executive budget. Those increases are a top priority, and I ask the legislature to make sure those get to my desk intact.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. And you can be certain that we'll do our part. Thanks to the Children's Health Insurance Program, 10,000 formerly uninsured youngsters have good health insurance coverage. That's progress in my book. We eliminated the small enrollment fee and have simplified the application process. We will continue to seek ways to simplify the paperwork so more families may participate. We have come halfway in our goal to insure a total of 20,000 children. I'm going to continue to bring more Montanans under the umbrella of affordable health insurance. Our budget makes a further step in that direction. We'll qualify families for CHIP at incomes up to 160% of poverty.

We are making the difficult transition to State oversight of our mental health services program. There is no question that it's still more than we can afford. We must fix it. We're going to do it by changing the way we do business in the department. We will direct the division to develop a plan, with input from the Mental Health Oversight Advisory Council to serve more people in, or closer to their own communities and in the least-restrictive settings that their mental health conditions require. I'm impressed by reports from Utah's mental health system with its capitated-regional mental health approach, and I want to explore those options for Montana.

We will carefully monitor our Program of Assertive Community Treatment (or PACT), with pilot programs in Billings and in Helena initiated last year. We intend to roll them out in other communities if the first two sites prove successful. We will look for ways to strengthen pharmaceutical treatment, especially where doing so may prevent the need for higher-cost, more restrictive placements.

For the first time in a century Montana has enough cells for those who are sentenced to Montana State Prison. For the first time in a long time judges know that if they send a person to MSP, their sentence will be served in the place they belong. The Department of Corrections could be called the water heater of the State budget. It is something no one wants to spend money on. It's not something you show off to your friends. And yet, it's just plain necessary.

Public safety is our most important responsibility. Without it, everything else we try to do in society is jeopardized. In just eight years we're nearly caught up in prison space after a hundred years of underfunding. Not bad.

We have enough cells. For now. We have more probation and parole officers for more effective supervision. For now. Our Pine Hills juvenile facility will be receiving accreditation/certification for its new sex offender facility. We're well equipped. For now.

I have signed a memorandum of understanding, along with Attorney General Mike McGrath and Chief Justice Karla Gray that will continue the development of our Criminal Justice Information System. With it, we will have the best possible information network between law enforcement, our courthouses and our corrections system. A seamless flow of information in our justice system will help us apprehend, incarcerate and monitor Montana offenders.

Sharing that information between agencies and between branches of government will score a major victory for public safety. Imagine a policeman being able to call up on a computer screen in her squad car the criminal history and probation record of the person she just pulled over. It's no longer imaginary. It's coming to Montana. I will not allow Montana's correctional system to fall behind. Safety is too important. But I expect accountability -- and answers -- straight up. Corrections will be accountable to me and it will be accountable to you in the Legislature. It will be accountable to the people of Montana. If Corrections asks for money that could go to schools, to tax relief, to patients, or any worthy cause, Corrections will have to justify it.

Government, particularly in Montana, has a significant duty to protect our water rights, stream access, habitat and wildlife. Access to our rivers and streams in Montana has been an important issue since pioneers first arrived. The Stream Access Law withstood two court challenges and we formed citizen advisory councils who have offered common sense solutions for some of our stream-crowding issues.

Water in the West, as we all know, is like gold. Montana institutionalized the leasing of water for in-stream and fisheries benefits. We will continue to support efforts to protect species of special concern. We will continue to support the catch and release angling for bull and cutthroat trout in an effort to help these species survive. We will continue to implement species conservation plans for our native cutthroat trout, bull trout, grayling, and sturgeon.

Now, thanks to a joint agreement reached under court-ordered mediation between state and federal agencies, the federal government will share responsibility for the brucellosis problem with the State of Montana. In case you did not know, by the end of this year the only remaining threat of brucellosis in the United States will lie within the bison of Yellowstone National Park. And as long as I am Governor of this state, I will fight for public safety. I will fight for our livestock producers. And we will fight against the threat of quarantine and brucellosis.

And for our number one industry, agriculture, I will be a true champion for better markets and more opportunities. It reminds me of an agricultural dinner I once attended.

We, too, are in charge. If we want better markets for our producers and their quality commodities, we must aggressively seek new opportunities. The 2000 Special Session invested in Agricultural Product Promotion. This investment will increase domestic and international Department of Agriculture-assisted product sales by 100% each year.

This investment will increase by 20 each year the number of food processing companies that participate in Montana Growth Through Agriculture-sponsored domestic and foreign trade missions. It will form an electronic clearinghouse of niche marketing ideas, leads, and international and national trends. It will assist 15 Montana agri-businesses and/or producers each year in the development of marketing plans that accurately reflect consumer trends in the marketplace. It will provide for educational functions and informal services to inform Montanans regarding agriculture's role in the environment, open space and recreation, and the role agriculture plays in the state's economy.

Montana must be willing to reinvest in its largest industry. Key to agricultural business expansion in Montana is the development of low cost, long term capital for investment in agriculture. We'll get the job done.

It's time to look at government and one another in a new way. It's time to set aside the measure of the past and set about to live up to our dreams. Look around you.

That truck driver may someday be the budget director for the entire state. [Right, Chuck Swysgood?] That surveyor may become speaker of the house. [Right, Dan McGee?] When a professor can succeed in politics...[Right, Ron Erickson?]. When a girl from humble beginnings can become an Olympic athlete and later the governor of this great state, you know anything is possible.

When a mining town with a big hole in the ground can switch gears to make semi conductors, you know things can happen. When you bring 150 people with opinions miles apart and, yet, desire to produce good things for their neighbors -- it's called good government -- it can be done.

It's time to look at one another in a new way. It's time to look at government and ask what can we accomplish, together. That waitress in Billings or that little Cheyenne girl in Ashland may be our governor someday. Don't count her out. Don't discount anyone or any possibility.

Montana is the Big Sky State, but it is also a state for big dreams. Lewis and Clark knew it almost 200 years ago. It's as true today. Determination to succeed and a blessing from above will make great new things happen. New jobs. New futures. A new Montana. Let's go to work.

Good night, and God bless Montana.

President Beck thanked the Governor and then introduced The Native Reign, a Native American dance group from Lame Deer, Montana. The dance group have performed their message of prevention in the United States and Majority Leader Sliter moved that the House recess for the purpose of a joint session for receiving the State of Education Address and that the House reconvene at 5:00 p.m., Friday, February 16, 2001. Motion carried.

House recessed at 1:24 p.m.

House reconvened at 1:25 p.m. Mr. Speaker in the chair.

SPECIAL ORDERS OF THE DAY

Sergeant-at-Arms Ahner escorted the Senate into the House Chamber.

Mr. Speaker introduced President Beck and yielded the Chair to him.

Senator Thomas moved that the body resolve itself into a joint session for the purpose of receiving the State of Education address from the Superintendent of Public Instruction. Motion carried.

HOUSE JOURNAL
THIRTY-NINTH LEGISLATIVE DAY - FEBRUARY 16, 2001

Senator Thomas moved that President Beck be authorized to appoint a committee of four to notify the Superintendent of Public Instruction that the House was in joint session and ready to receive her address. Motion carried.

President Beck appointed Senators Glaser and Ryan and Representatives Lawson and Raser and discharged them to escort the Superintendent of Public Instruction into the House Chamber.

Sergeant-at-Arms Cramer escorted the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the committee into the House Chamber.

Invocation was given by Pastor Keith Johnson of the Evangelical Covenant Church.

After being introduced by President Beck, Linda McCulloch, Superintendent of Public Instruction, delivered the following address:

Thank you very much President Beck, Speaker McGee. I'd also like to recognize Governor Judy Martz, Lieutenant Governor Karl Ohs, Attorney General Mike McGrath, Secretary of State Bob Brown, State Auditor John Morrison, Senator Steve Doherty, and Rep. Kim Gillan. I would like to thank my husband Bill for being here today.

I would like to thank the members of the American Association of University Women and the educators that are in the gallery. And I would just like to ask all of the educators in the audience, both in the gallery and on the floor, to stand up for a moment. These are the people that make education possible. Let's give them a hand.

I had hoped that we would be able to have a presentation for you by some Montana school kids. However, in deference to the workload you are facing leading up to the transmittal deadline and the very serious issues facing Montana education, we decided to save the children's presentation for another time. I trust that their presence is never far from your minds as you discuss these issues.

I cannot express how proud I am to stand before you for the first time as the representative of Montana's schools.

I'm proud because I have the opportunity to address this body in the chamber where I have served as a legislator. In fact, I used to sit right over there in Rep. Callahan's seat and shake my finger at Rep. Dan McGee until he voted for my bills--sometimes it even worked. I would, again, especially like to thank Speaker McGee for his graciousness and his friendship as we both moved into our new positions.

I'm proud because representing Montana's schools means representing the thousands of Montana parents, teachers, school boards, and community members who dedicate themselves every day to building a brighter future for our children. I can't tell you what an honor that is.

Most of all, I'm proud to be able to stand before you and talk about the future of Montana. Our 160,000 public school children - your children and grandchildren - are that future. It is education, more than any other factor, that will determine how bright that future will be.

And it is just as true that education is the key to making sure they can fulfill that future right here in Montana. Education is the key to economic development. Businesses simply will not locate in Montana unless we provide them with an educated workforce and a place where they will want to move their families and their school-age children. And more often than not, those businesses are being started and grown by Montana graduates who return home to send their own kids to Montana schools.

HOUSE JOURNAL
THIRTY-NINTH LEGISLATIVE DAY - FEBRUARY 16, 2001

It is education that will prepare our children and grandchildren for this new century. Education allows them to compete in a world where all sectors of the economy - from microchips to mining - depend on high tech skills and training.

I have spent the past sixteen years in a classroom at Bonner School, teaching kids. It is the greatest job in the whole world. I can tell you, as any teacher can, how it feels to have the opportunity each day to shape the life of a child. What it feels like to see in their eyes and their smiles that you have made a difference. Leaving that classroom and giving up that opportunity was one of the toughest decisions of my life. That was why it meant so much to me to see my Bonner kids travel here to Helena when I was sworn in as superintendent. It was in talking to those kids - my kids - that it hit me just how much this job means. Because I realized that even though I no longer get my daily supply of classroom smiles, my actions as superintendent, yours as legislators, and yours as governor affect every one of those classrooms, and each one of those children.

And if I am ever tempted to get distracted by budgets, or politics, or bureaucracy, all I have to do is look at the apple notes each of my students in Bonner made to line the walls of my office. When I think of them, there is no question where my focus is: improving Montana classrooms, so our children can succeed.

With that guiding principle, I would like to take a moment to outline my vision for the future of Montana schools. The vision that I hope you and I can work together to achieve.

The state of Montana education is at a fork in the road. Our children have incredible potential, and through the dedication of parents, teachers, and school trustees our schools are among the best in the country. If we invest in our children's education we can make Montana schools the envy of the country and prepare our students to rebuild Montana's economy in this new century. However, school districts' budgets are being stretched to the breaking point. They simply cannot continue to take cuts because of declining enrollment without any increased support from the state. If we fail to invest in schools, the quality of our children and grandchildren's education will decline. We're running out of duct tape and baling twine.

Today, thanks to the incredible efforts of local communities, Montana students rank among the top in the nation. Montana 8th graders rank 1st in the nation in science achievement, 3rd in reading, 3rd in math, and 11th in writing. I am incredibly proud of those students. And I'm proud of the parents, teachers, and communities that support them. Montana taxpayers invest their money, and, more importantly, their children in our public schools and they deserve to know that our schools are maintaining accountability for preparing our students for the world of the 21st Century. Academic standards provide that accountability.

That is why the Montana Legislature funded the development of new academic standards to "raise the bar" to challenge all students to learn and achieve at higher levels. Hundreds of educators, school board members, parents, and community leaders around the state worked to develop these standards that the Board of Public Education recently approved.

Now, the real work begins. Now, we have to make sure that our classroom teachers are given the support they need to help our students meet these standards. We need to continue to use testing and other forms of assessment to measure our progress, and we need to make sure that our teachers are given the skills and knowledge to help our children succeed. Montana students are our greatest resource; if we invest in them, there is no telling where they can take this state.

I am very excited about the broad bipartisan support at the federal level for exactly the kind of assessment and teacher development programs that Montana has already got a jump-start on. I am eager to work with the Bush administration on programs to improve our schools, while still maintaining local control of curriculum. And I am encouraged by the high priority President Bush has put on education.

One of the most important reasons for the success of our schools is that Montana maintains small class sizes that allow our teachers time to give their kids the attention and help they need. It is one of the many reasons why maintaining school funding is so important. We need to fund education, not because of its political fallout and not because it helps teachers. We need to fund education because your children and grandchildren deserve the chance to learn.

I stand before you as a concerned teacher, not a politician, when I say to you that the proposed budget in House Bill 121 actually reduces current school funding levels by $18 million. Schools cannot afford it. Children cannot afford it. And, Montana cannot afford it.

You'll have to forgive me for a moment for doing a little teaching - I can't help it, it's who I am. I want to talk a little about what has happened to school funding over the past decade. In 1993, the legislature redesigned the school funding formula to avoid the $30 million increase that increased enrollment required; then in a special session later that year they cut another $20 million in school funding. The state then made no significant increase in the school funding rates until the last biennium.

However, even with the increases in the 1999 session and the 2000 special session, funding levels are barely where they were before the 1993 cuts. Yet, schools' fixed costs have risen dramatically over that time, even before schools were faced with the skyrocketing costs of energy, leaving school districts desperate to meet their costs. So far, districts have been able to shield children, as much as possible, from the cuts, but that time has run out. No increase in funding levels, combined with the $18 million decrease due to declining enrollment, will devastate those budgets.

Let me tell you what these cuts will mean to schools. For several districts, including Missoula, Butte, and Livingston, it may mean shutting down entire schools. For the seven AA districts around the state it could lead to the layoff of over 200 teachers. Let me repeat that, 200 teachers in 7 communities. I've been told that the number could be as high as 400 to 500 teachers in communities around the state. That means teachers aren't in the classrooms. It also means they won't be in the supermarkets, won't be building homes, won't be paying taxes. That hurts our economy.

Cuts in school budgets will mean larger class sizes. They will mean less personal attention in those early grades that are so crucial when kids are struggling to learn how to read and write. In the upper grades, it will mean cuts in programs to keep at-risk students from dropping out. It will mean the loss of opportunities: from music to math. It will mean cuts in the increasingly important vocational training our young folks need to be prepared for the work force. It will mean out-of-date textbooks. It will mean schools cutting into general fund budgets to pay for the state's failure to fund special education.

These are the very real effects of budget cuts on schools. Now, let me tell you about the effect on our classrooms. Let me give you just one example out of many. I would like to recognize Mona Bilden from Miles City up there in the Gallery today. Mona represents the dedication of Montana teachers. Let me tell you a story; one that is all too common around the state. Mona Bilden was sick and tired of budget cuts hurting the education of her students, so she went out and sacrificed over $500 of her own money to buy the supplies she needed for her classroom. This situation cannot continue. Teachers like Mona simply will not be able to keep our budget cuts from hurting our kids. Our children cannot be charity cases.

I give you these examples because I know that with charts and graphs in the millions of dollars it can be difficult, at times, to see the children through the numbers. However, when I urge you to support House Bill 31, the school funding proposal put forward by the education community, I give you my word that school funding dollars do touch the lives of children. They mean valuable minutes a teacher can spend helping a student struggle over a spelling word or a long division problem. School funding dollars mean technology skills that could make the difference between finding a job in Montana or being forced to pack up and leave. They mean a chemistry or English class that makes someone decide to go to college, or a band or basketball program that keeps forgotten students in school and learning.

Finding the money to fund our schools is never easy. You face incredibly difficult decisions. But, funding schools is a question of priorities and a question of commitment. We are not talking luxuries; we are talking about our children's basic and constitutional right to a quality education.

Because of declining enrollment there will be $31 million of unspent money in the two years of this biennium. All of that money should go back into school funding. With skyrocketing energy costs hitting schools as sharply as they are hitting homeowners, and given the rising fixed costs that they face, taking that money away from schools to fund shortfalls really is balancing the budget on the backs of our children. It is unacceptable.

I ask you to stop parents, teachers, and school trustees from having to come to Helena as beggars and have this same fight year after year. We should not have to reinvent the wheel each session. I ask you to work with me to come up with a ten-year plan to return state funding of education to where it needs to be. The interim study committee proposed by my office is the first step in that process, and I look forward to the prospect of finding a long term solution to our school funding problem.

My father always taught me to roll up my sleeves and work until the job is done. When I saw my father roll up his sleeves, I knew that he was serious and committed. It wasn't until later that I realized that my family has short arms, so we pretty much have to roll up our sleeves to do anything.

My sleeves are rolled up, and I am committed to school funding, and to working with all parties to find a solution. I am not interested in playing the blame game. I will work with you as long and as hard as we have to, and I will make sure that my staff does the same. We can, and we must, find a way to properly fund our schools. And I will be here as long as it takes.

I also pledge to work just as hard on the other challenges that face our schools: ending school violence, facing the approaching crisis in teacher shortages, better integrating Montana public schools and institutions of higher education, and fighting the devastatingly high dropout rate among American Indian students. Something must be done to address these issues, and together we must find a solution.

First and foremost, our classrooms must be safe. The devastation of school violence casts a shadow over all our schools, and threats and bullying hurt our children's ability to learn and crush their self-respect. These are issues that affect all of us. That is why the solution must come from all of us as a community. I will work with students, parents, and educators, joining forces with law enforcement, church, and civic leaders to help local communities prevent violence and promote school safety and character education. These programs must teach Montana community values like honesty, respect, and responsibility.

I applaud Governor Racicot's task force for taking the first steps to deal with teacher shortages. I urge the legislature to adopt those programs and I will work with Governor Martz to continue the work that task force began.

I am committed to creating a seamless K through 16 education system. I plan to be fully engaged with higher education, making full use of my constitutional position on the Board of Public Education, the Board of Regents and the combined Board of Education to further that goal.

Some of our gravest educational concerns are the challenges faced by our American Indian students. I will spotlight those challenges and continue to work with the tribal governments and colleges, the governor, and local school districts to help our Indian students get the education they need. I am committed to thinking outside the box and working to find new ideas and solutions to address these serious issues. Right now we are losing too many of our Montana Indian students; they cannot be left behind.

I am a teacher and a school librarian. Literacy and reading are my passion. I'm proud that Montana children rank 3rd in the nation for reading, but too many children are still left behind. Of the 60 Montana schools identified as "in need of improvement," the majority of whom are identified because of a failure of children to read at a proficient level. Children who can't read are at higher risk for everything from dropping out of school to being able to hold a decent job. As state superintendent, I will launch a Montana Literacy Initiative, starting with a Literacy Summit later this year, to focus the attention of parents, teachers, community and business leaders on the importance of reading and literacy. There is no issue closer to my heart.

I pledge to you that I will work hard to make your investment in education pay off. I will put my full effort into strengthening that essential bond between education and economic development. I will work with the leaders of business, labor, agriculture, economic development, and higher education to make sure our students are ready to be the future of Montana's workforce.

Next Wednesday, I will join Senator Max Baucus in Bozeman at a summit regarding the role of education in economic development. We will discuss how Montana schools need to adapt to give our students the tools to rebuild Montana's economy and be able to stay here and put their own kids into our public schools.

Montana must increase our investment in vocational and technical education. Half a century ago, only 20 percent of the American workforce was made up of skilled labor; today, that number has risen to 60 percent. Yet, Montana's spending on career and technical education, including agriculture, industrial technology, and business education, is considerably lower than the rest of the states in the region and country. Economic experts ranging from Qwest to the Montana World Trade Center tell us that one of the best ways to create jobs and raise wages in Montana is to make sure our students are trained for the workforce. This is one economic development program that is a concrete problem with a concrete solution. Give our schools the tools they need and we will turn out the best-trained students in the world!

I know that we Montanans can do whatever we put our minds to. I would like to leave you with a story of how far an honest, hard-working Montanan can go with a quality education.

It is the story of an 8th grade dropout, working as a mine mucker in the copper mines of Butte; a young man who made the best decision of his life by falling in love with a schoolteacher. (My husband, I might add, made the same wise choice.) He was a man of amazing potential, but whose life wasn't going anywhere when he met the woman who would become his wife. In his own words, "She put some sense into me, told me to go to school and make something of myself, and I did."

He certainly did. He completed his high school equivalency, and went to the University of Montana. His wife cashed in her life insurance policy to put him through college, where he would go on to teach as a professor. And that story would be success enough, even if she hadn't convinced him to run for, and helped him win, a seat in the United States Congress, where he would serve five terms before moving on to the Senate where he held the position of Majority Leader longer than anyone else in U.S. history. Finally, he completed his career as Ambassador to Japan under the Carter and Reagan administrations.

HOUSE JOURNAL
THIRTY-NINTH LEGISLATIVE DAY - FEBRUARY 16, 2001

That couple was, of course, Mike and Maureen Mansfield, two of Montana's greatest heroes. They show us what we are capable of. And, if you ask Mike Mansfield the reasons for his success, his answer will always be the same: his wife and his education.

Montanans can do anything. There is simply no doubt of it. But the State of Montana's education is at a fork in the road. Schools can no longer just cut corners and still preserve student services. This round of cuts will hurt students. The decision whether or not to fund schools is in your hands, and I'm proud to stand here with you and make sure we find a way to do it.

Like Mike Mansfield, Montana's students hold incredible potential to rebuild this state. If we let them, there is no telling how far they can take us.

But we must not waste their potential. Shortchanging our children is shortchanging our future. We must invest in our schools.

To paraphrase the late Maureen Mansfield, "We, as a state, need to go to school and make something of ourselves." Thank you very much!

The committee escorted the Superintendent of Public Instruction from the House Chamber.

Senator Thomas moved that the joint session of the 57th legislature be adjourned. Motion carried.

House recessed at 2:03 p.m.

House reconvened at 5:00 p.m. Mr. Speaker in the chair. All members present, except Representatives R. Brown and Gallus, excused. Quorum present.

(2) The local board may adopt a ~~rule regulation~~ to implement 50-2-116(1)(i), (2)(k)(iii), or (2)(k)(v) that is applicable to subdivisions that is more stringent than comparable state regulations rules or guidelines only if the local board makes a written finding, after a public hearing and public comment and based on evidence in the record, that:

(3) The department may not require the applicant to submit any additional information unless the department can show that significant changes in the environmental baseline data have occurred during the period of operation or since the revocation of the initial operating permit.

(4) The department may not prepare a review under 75-1-201 for a transfer unless the department determines that the operation has caused or may cause significant impacts that have not been analyzed previously in an environmental review document prepared pursuant to 75-1-201.

(5) The department shall process an application for transfer under the same timeframes as are provided in 82-4-231 for processing of permit applications.

(6) Except as provided in subsection (7), the department shall, after receipt of an application pursuant to subsections (2) through (5) and after public notice and opportunity for comment:

(a) transfer the operating permit to a new operator if the new operator provides proof of site ownership or control and adequate bonding as required by this part; and

(b) require as a condition of permit transfer that, prior to creating additional disturbance at the site, all preexisting permit deficiencies, including modifications necessary because of reclamation that has been conducted at the site, be corrected to the satisfaction of the department and that any preestablished environmental monitoring requirements continue.

(7) The department may not transfer any permit for which it has determined that:

(a) the requirements of this part and the rules adopted under this part for operation, backfilling, grading, subsidence stabilization, water control, highwall reduction, topsoiling, revegetation, and reclamation of the affected area cannot be met;

(b) significant changes in the operating plan or reclamation plan are necessary;

(c) environmental data has not been collected and recorded in substantial compliance with the environmental monitoring requirements of this part, rules adopted under this part, or the permit; or

(d) the department would be precluded from issuing a permit to the applicant by 82-4-227(11) or (12).

Sergeant-at-Arms Cramer escorted U.S. Congressman Dennis Rehberg and the committee into the House Chamber.

Junior Girl Scout Troop from Billings presented the flags.

Invocation was given by Pastor Keith Johnson of the Evangelical Covenant Church.

After being introduced by President Beck, U.S. Congressman Dennis Rehberg delivered the following address:

Thank you for the opportunity to come back to Helena and address the Montana legislature. It's a great tradition for our state's Senators and Congressmen.

When I was here for three terms in the 1980's we listened to Senators John Melcher, Max Baucus and Conrad Burns, as well as Congressmen Pat Williams and Ron Marlenee. I learned then how valuable it is to keep the lines of communication open between our state officials and our representatives in Washington.

Now that I've had some experience in both the Montana Legislature and in the U. S. Congress, I can tell you there are a couple of pretty big differences. There are a lot more members in the United States Congress and the pay's a lot better. But, in Congress we've accomplished a lot less in the first 60 days than we ever did when I was a state legislator from Billings.

If we were paying Congressmen and legislators by the amount of legislation passed, the folks in this chamber would be getting paid a lot more and I'd be getting paid a lot less.

HOUSE JOURNAL
FIFTIETH LEGISLATIVE DAY - MARCH 5, 2001

One other difference I should mention... When I took my turn as Speaker of the House last month, my mom watched me on C-SPAN. She called and told me to do a better job next time. It was a humbling experience. When I sat in that chair here in the Montana House of Representatives, my mom never once called and told me to straighten my tie, or never once told me I was losing weight.

But, things are starting to get down to whatever normal is on Capitol Hill in Washington. I've successfully figured out how to vote by using a plastic credit card. I've actually introduced a couple of bills. I've sat in my first few committee meetings, and just like here, it doesn't seem freshmen just don't get to talk enough in committee, or on the floor.

I'm sure you've noticed that President Bush is already driving the political agenda in Washington. Some of you probably watched his first speech last Tuesday.

The President has launched the debate on tax relief, by putting down his marker for a $1.6 trillion permanent tax reduction over the next 10 years.

It was the famous Illinois Senator Everett Dirksen who once said: "A million here and a million there and pretty soon it adds up to real money."

Well, we've long since passed using millions, we've blown by billions and now, we're into trillions and trillions.

I don't know about you, but I'll admit I'm having a real hard time conjuring up a picture of what a trillion dollars is. I find myself wondering if you could buy every cow in America...or the world...with a trillion dollars. I have no idea. I do know you could buy every Cashmere goat in America with a lot less!

But, the President is very insistent on starting the tax relief debate at the $1.6 trillion level, and he's making a very strong case.

He has also put forth a strong argument for his education plan. He's obviously very committed to his belief that no child should be left behind.

The President will soon be coming forward with his plan to revitalize and modernize our nation's military services and their defense capabilities. He started the ball rolling in his speech with his commitment to increase pay and benefits for the men and women in uniform – this includes the Reserves and National Guard men and women in the State of Montana—a position I wholeheartedly endorse. In fact, I beat the president to the punch and have already introduced legislation to increase the pay for those in military service by $150 per month.

The President will soon submit his plans for a National Energy Policy – which will be very important to us here in Montana. His plan will address the need to increase domestic energy supplies in order to stabilize energy costs, a policy drastically overdue.

As a member of the Energy and Minerals Subcommittee of the House Natural Resources Committee, you may be assured that I will be intimately involved in the process because of its impact on our people, our resources and our environment. We will begin by fully funding clean coal technology, which is so important to Montana's future, and increasing funding for the low-income energy assistance program.

The President says he'll soon weigh in with his plans to shore up the Social Security and Medicare programs. He says he'll be looking for ways to increase retirement income for those just now entering the work force – but not at the expense of those nearing retirement.

HOUSE JOURNAL
FIFTIETH LEGISLATIVE DAY - MARCH 5, 2001

This will be one of the great debates in the Congress this year – and certainly this century—as we bring our retirement system into the 21st century to meet the needs of our children and our parents.

This is the crux of the President's agenda, and his advisors are saying that we will be able to pay down the national debt to virtually zero in the next 10-year period. It's the first time any President has been able to say that the end of the national debt—that has been with us since the Civil War—is in sight.

Not that you had any doubt, but I'll be strongly supporting the President's agenda.

More importantly, however, I'll be working to ensure that Montana's interests are represented in the debate. And from that perspective, I want to talk to you now about what I think are some of the most important aspects of the presidential agenda and how they might affect Montana, as well as share with you a few of my core priorities over the next couple of years.

First - Tax relief. President Bush is right; Americans want, need, and deserve a share of the federal surplus. The President's tax relief plan is pretty simple. It takes the current five-rate structure of 15, 28, 31, 36 and 39.6 percent and puts in place a four-rate structure of 10, 15, 25 and 33 percent.

The numbers are not all in yet, but enactment of the President's plan could mean as much as $5 million in new revenue for the State of Montana. And as much as I respect my colleagues in Washington, D. C., I would much rather have you spend the money on Montana priorities, such as education, health care or economic development, than let those in Congress spend it.

I'm very supportive of the plan to double the child tax credit to $1,000, because that puts real money back in the pockets of taxpayers when they need it to provide for young families.

And, I'm extremely supportive of legislation to do away with the estate tax. The death tax is an onerous tax which punishes those who work and save, results in the destruction of family farms and businesses and forces our senior Americans, your parents and mine, to pay lawyers and accountants in order to save that which they have worked a lifetime to achieve.

Whether it's a ranch, a small business or an investment portfolio, the decision of who gets one's assets at death should be a matter of personal choice, not government edict.

In addition, I will fight for the elimination of the marriage penalty. While the President's plan calls for "reducing" of the marriage penalty, I see no reason to perpetuate a clearly discriminatory tax policy that hurts our Montana families. I will, therefore, be among those who will be pushing to not only reduce the discrepancy as the President suggests, but to eliminate it all together.

Can all of this be done? You bet. We don't need an Electrolux tax system sucking every last penny out of taxpayer's pockets.

We're paying all the bills in Washington, and there's a whole lot of money left over. I'm hopeful that together, Congress and the White House can give some of the left over back to the people who sent it in the first place. After all, it's their money.

By now you have noticed the President has made education reform his number one priority. And, those of you serving in the Legislature know that education is, and always has been, a Montana priority. My pledge to you is that I will work with you to see that Montana schools meet, and exceed the mark for Montana's education.

HOUSE JOURNAL
FIFTIETH LEGISLATIVE DAY - MARCH 5, 2001

As a result, I want to say to my friends in Congress—"there is a difference between Jordan, Montana and Houston, Texas. And while the President's plan is a start, some of his ideas won't have as much impact in Montana as they will in other parts of the country. Quite frankly, vouchers may not be an answer for Montana.

Now don't get me wrong. The President's plan is probably working well in Texas. And, I suspect it'll work well for two-thirds of America's families and students – particularly those living in heavily populated areas – because not all public school systems are as good as Montana's and because those more populated areas have more choices than we do here. So for that reason, the President's plan is worthy of consideration – because it may very well help a significant portion of the rest of the country.

But, my task, and yours, is to find ways to help improve the education of our children right here in Montana.

As a result, you can be assured any education legislation I support will be put to a test...does it grant more freedom for schools, school districts and states in administering federal education dollars? And, does it give states and local school districts flexible block grants to prepare, recruit and train high-quality teachers? In return, school districts will be held accountable.

But, we must go beyond that. I believe we've got to expand Education Savings Accounts to help parents save for their children's education. We also need tax credits to cover tutoring costs and other educational expenses borne by parents to supplement their children's education. These tax credits will encourage parents involvement in finding ways to better supplement their children's education while preserving needed revenue in school budgets.

Finally, and, I'm very passionate about this, the federal government must honor its promise made to states under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, or IDEA—which directs federal dollars to students with special needs. You see, under IDEA, the federal government promised to pay 40% of the costs of special needs students, a commitment it has failed to meet. Currently, only 15% of these costs are funded out of the federal budget, forcing yet another unfunded mandate on our local school systems. This is unacceptable. The IDEA promise must be fully funded. It's simple—we have an obligation to see that no child is left behind.

Mending the best health care system in the world, without destroying it, is one of the real challenges facing the Congress - and lawmakers at every level have to be involved in the debate.

I am hopeful that we can have real health care reform on the President's desk by late this year.

Retirement should be a time of health and security for America's seniors. Yet, skyrocketing prescription drug costs have turned many seniors' golden years into nightmare years. Lack of drug coverage proportionately affects the near poor who are not eligible for Medicaid, the oldest area elderly and seniors living in rural America.

Our goal is to insure that all seniors have the ability to obtain effective prescription drug coverage, and I believe we can do it.

But, the legislative process often lacks a sense of urgency...that is why I am supporting the "Helping Hand" initiative that will provide funds to Montana - immediately - to help you provide prescription drug plans for Medicare recipients who are the least able to afford their needed prescriptions.

I am also going to support an effort to provide a new tax credit to help lower income-families purchase health insurance.

And, I am going to seek to permanently extend Medical Savings Accounts to allow families to save for future and present health care needs.

HOUSE JOURNAL

I will also support a Patient's Bill of Rights that ensures that all Americans are guaranteed the personal choice of physicians and medical treatment, rather than what's allowed by HMO accountants in green eye shades 2,000 miles away from the doctor's office or the local hospital in Montana.

And, I'll be supporting an effort to up-grade veterans hospitals and improve the availability of health care for those who wore the uniform. I am currently working with others in Congress to provide veterans with a so-called "credit card" to cover health care received in facilities other than VA clinics and hospitals. It makes no sense to me why people are bussed all around the country when they can get great and timely service in their local hospitals or clinics. We should not, however, abandon our VA hospitals, which provide an essential service to many veterans across this country.

And, I will continue to work for increased Medicare reimbursements to our rural hospitals. In conversation with Speaker Hastert during my campaign, we discussed the plight of rural hospitals and the Speaker promised that help was coming. He delivered on that promise and approximately $35 billion in additional money was allocated for Medicare recipients. I will continue to work with the Speaker to see that the true cost of providing medical services in rural communities is recognized.

Finally, as most of you know, Montana has one of the highest rates of uninsured patients in the nation. Statistics indicate that approximately 20 percent of our people do not have health care coverage. I can assure you that as the debate goes on in Congress, I'll be looking for ways to develop affordable insurance for families in Montana.

You know, though, we have to have a way to pay for what we need in education and health care. We simply just can't raise more money in taxes from a state that is 47th in the nation in per capita income and last in average wages for individuals.

So, that makes economic development #1 on my priority list. Without it, we can't afford the education system our children deserve, or the health insurance and medical care we need.

As elected leaders we cannot allow ourselves to wallow in self-pity or engage in doom and gloom. As public servants we must be optimists, because Montana does have a lot to offer.

We all know Montana needs jobs, and not just low paying jobs. But the question will be - how are we going to get them? Well, let's add up our assets and see what we've got.

We have an abundance of energy, and the ability to produce a great deal more. Our coal and natural gas reserves stretch for hundreds of years into the future. We can turn that into electricity, and yes, we can sell that electricity to California. But, why don't we go a step further, and add value to our electricity? Why don't we build generation facilities here in Montana, and then to California and say: "Come to Montana with your auto jobs, your computer jobs, your aerospace jobs. We will guarantee that you never experience a "brown-out or black-out". In fact, we will guarantee you a firm, low-cost power contract - not for 5 years or 10 years, but for 15, 20 or 30 years. Come to Glendive, Libby or Dillon. Come to our reservations, where we have 60% and 70% unemployment and need employment and jobs." "We have a strong east-west and north-south highway system. We have major rail lines that run east and west, and north and south."

In fact, if you don't move your business to Montana, we're going to lock you in a room with Senator Kitzenberg!"

Essential to any economic development is a communication and transportation infrastructure that meets today's needs. That's one of the reasons I asked to sit on the House Transportation Committee. We need a Montanan on that committee to see that we get every opportunity to improve the transportation system in Montana, that is so essential to economic development.

HOUSE JOURNAL

And, we must not forget that Montana is one of the top ag producing states in the country—it's still our number one industry.

We need a strong agricultural community in all 56 counties that's not continually beat down by low prices, drought and unfair trading practices. This week I will be introducing legislation as one solution to the farm crisis. The legislation I am referring to will allow a 20 year 50% tax credit for any capital expense adding value to agricultural products. I envision more businesses like Wheat Montana, Cream of the West and producer-owned sugar beet factories in Billings or Sidney. All of this means a more secure future for Montana, and better jobs for our families.

When I served in this body for three terms in the 1980's, I knew then that we had our partisan differences, most assuredly, but we were all genuinely committed to one thing—building a more secure future for Montana.

And, I know, from prior experience in this hall, that as this legislative body strives to do the people's business here during the next six weeks, you will work together for what is surely the ultimate goal—a better, more secure future for all Montanans throughout this great state we call home. For that I thank you. I know how hard and how rewarding your job is, and I wish you the best as you finish out the session.

Thank you for this opportunity to speak to you today. I hope you look forward as much as I do, to an on-going dialogue between the Congressional delegation and those of you serving with distinction here in Montana.

If there is ever anything I can do to assist, please call. My door is always open to you, my friends. Thank you.

The committee escorted U.S. Congressman Rehberg from the House Chamber.

Senator Thomas moved that the joint session of the 57th legislature be adjourned. Motion carried.

Representative Diane Rice

Mr. Speaker appointed the following member to the Environmental Quality Council:

After being introduced by President Beck, Senator Max Baucus delivered the following address:

Thanks for welcoming me back to the Montana Legislature. It's been a long time since I've had the pleasure of serving with you. Yet, in so many ways, it feels like it was just yesterday. I spent time working right here, sitting in your desk, Gary Forrester. Actually, it's you who is sitting in my desk!

That time shaped my views and reinforced my dedication to public service. I'm lucky to still have such good working relationships with so many of you on both sides of the aisle. Having served here only deepens my respect for everything you do. How hard you work.

It's easy for folks to be critical. But, I know the huge amount of work each one of you does for our state. Not just during these 90 days, but between sessions as well. You are all working to make this fragile and animated place we live a little bit better.

HOUSE JOURNAL
FIFTY-FOURTH LEGISLATIVE DAY - MARCH 9, 2001

I'd like to acknowledge Aubyn Curtiss, who I served with years ago. I still proudly read your update and look for your picture in the Tobacco Valley and Western News.

I'm also pleased I've developed friendships with so many of you:

Walt McNutt - I appreciate your continuing interest in Economic Development. You've been a long-time champion of the issue, and I look forward to our continuing efforts and results.

Steve Gallus - I'm very interested in the bill you're drafting to promote high technology and economic development. That's exactly the way we should be moving as a state.

Mike Taylor - I like the bill you've sponsored to move job creation functions of the Department of Commerce over to Governor Martz's office. That's a great first step to start streamlining government.

Doug Mood - I've enjoyed our meetings and talks over the last few session, and look forward to continued discussions of economic development.

Sam Kitzenberg - You've been extremely helpful in our education discussions, and a great champion of Glasgow, the Hi-line and Montana.

Thank you all for your incredible service to Montana. Let's now take it to the next step. Let's reach our goals by working in unison at all levels of government - federal, state, and local. Working together is what I've done since I've been in public office, and what I will continue to do for as long as I'm lucky enough to serve Montana.

I feel there's real change in the air. I feel it in Washington and here in Montana, too. And it's an exciting feeling! We're changing by realizing we have to work together. We have to make the hard decisions if we ever want to reach our goals. Just this week Governor Martz met in a breakfast with the congressional delegation in D. C. I really appreciate that. It's east to talk the talk, but it's so nice when people walk the walk.

Conrad, Denny and I are working on putting together a Farm Bill right now. That's never happened before. The three of us sitting down at the table, talking about what we can do together to help Montanans. We're also planning on working on the next highway bill together. It's a new era with the Montana delegation.

Montanans gave me this job, just as they've given you yours, and we take that responsibility very seriously. Only by continuing to work together can we make sure that Montana is all we dream it can be.

Economic Development

As the old saying goes, "The more things change, the more they stay the same." I don't know of anywhere that saying is more fitting than Montana. Joseph Kinsey Howard's book, "Montana: High, Wide and Handsome," is a book we all should read again. Published in 1943, it's a story of Montana that could just as easily be told today.

"[Montana's] imbalance in population will affect all America; and that is the reason for singling out a state whose economy seems most precarious - in the hope that discussion of its experience may encourage sympathetic understanding of steps already taken to aid it, and help set in motion more such movements for all of the west."

Remember, that was in 1943; 58 years ago. "...a state whose economy seems most precarious." Can't you just see that as a headline in today's paper? That feeling of change I mentioned earlier - let's capture that. Move forward together and be open to change. It's what will lead us to the new, fresh solutions we need. Our goal: A headline that reads -

HOUSE JOURNAL
FIFTY-FOURTH LEGISLATIVE DAY - MARCH 9, 2001

"Montanans Embrace Change, Work Together, Reap Economic Bounty."

While embracing change, we will continue to honor the past. A past whose roots dig deep into agriculture and a land-based economy. Too often, the Old Economy is pitted against the new. This doesn't have to be an either/or situation.

For example, let's invest in research to develop new technologies for our basic industries. Combining the best of the old with the best of the new. Just look at what MSU's College of Agriculture is doing. Finding ways to apply technology to our basic industries. Especially farming. They've created alternative crops. Plants that produce fuels, oils, lubricants, pharmaceuticals.

Mark Semmens, a member of the Montana Board of Regents, recently said: "The factors that are adversely affecting our traditional industries are worldwide conditions that will not be changed by statewide policies. The reality is that if we want to gain competitive advantage with natural resource industries in Montana - or in the United States - we will do so by applying innovative technologies to resource production, extraction, and processing. And again, this comes right back to university research and education."

Change is a tough thing, but it's always for the better. It requires us to be on our toes. Nimble, creative and flexible. Just think of how many companies have gone under, and CEO's who have pulled the ripcord on the golden parachute because they wouldn't embrace new ideas. We can't let a similar fate happen to Montana. Change shouldn't be threatening. Being open, flexible and ready to seize new ideas and opportunities will lead us to the economic health we want and crave.

It's time we dig in our heels, roll up our sleeves. As author Sam Ewing once said, "Hard work spotlights the character of people: some turn up their sleeves, some turn up their noses, and some don't turn up at all."

We all know Montanans don't hesitate to roll up their sleeves and get to work. They pitch in and do the hard work. Awhile back I gave some of those hard working Montanans a call. We came up with the idea of holding an economic development summit.

We joined together last June in Great Falls with over 1,000 other hard-working Montanans for an Economic Development Summit. The enthusiasm of that crowd proved to me that we were on the right track.

Boosting our state's economy and creating good-paying jobs is important to Montanans. Let's join together to make this an annual event.

Our second summit will be this June 29th and 30th at the University of Great Falls. I know Denny mentioned to you on Monday that economic development is his number one priority. I was very pleased to hear that. This is yet another opportunity for us all to work together.

The Economic Development Action Group, led by my friend and banker from Billings, Tom Scott, was a result of the first summit. EDAG's 16 members are from all walks of life. Primarily from the private sector. They've been talking with Governor Martz and many of you, and have submitted recommendations on ways to boost the state's economy and create more good-paying jobs. Creating jobs is not a partisan issue. It's about taking care of our state. Moving us up from the bottom rung of the national economic ladder. I hope that we can all work together - and I mean that - to create more good-paying jobs so our kids can stay home.

I'd like to ask for your help and your support. Because we're all red-blooded Montanans. We're all in this together. And, we all must work together - Democrat and Republican, public and private sector, state, federal, local and tribal. Our kids' futures are just too important to let politics and partisanship get in the way. From the beginning of this economic development initiative, I've had three guiding principles:

FIFTY-FOURTH LEGISLATIVE DAY - MARCH 9, 2001

All efforts must be non-partisan.

The initiative must be private sector driven.

And, most importantly, nothing's off the table.

These are EDAG's building principles. They will drive us toward a real plan for economic development. While we're obviously not always going to agree on every single detail, we can agree on our goal. To achieve real economic health. And, I think that's something we can all agree on. It should be a priority for us all.

Education

Economic development and education are linked. Education's got to be at the top of the list because you can't have one without the other.

Education is the fertile soil from which all success grows. Look at Mike Mansfield, a statesman we all admire:

Mike was a middle school dropout. He served as a soldier and toiled as a mine mucker. His wife, Maureen, was a powerful influence and turned his life around by encouraging him to further his education. From a man who had no employment options beyond manual labor to becoming a college professor, and then a Montana and American political leader. Throughout his career, Mike said simply, but with great sincerity, Maureen's support and her encouragement of education were the foundation of his success.

Statistics show that the average high school graduate earns up to 60 percent more than the high school dropout. A college graduate earns up to 80 to 90 percent more than a high school graduate. We've got to fund education. It's that simple. I've been keeping a very close eye on the proposals that have come forward here this year, and have been excited by what I've seen:

Bob Brown's and Linda McCulloch's Education Trust Plan, introduced by Majority Leader Fred Thomas.

Leveraging the Coal Tax Trust Fund - one way or another. This is an interesting idea.

Boosting tobacco taxes. It's been tossed around in the past, and I know you're looking at it.

We also have to help our teachers. There's no reason other states in our region can afford to pay their teachers what they're worth, and we can't. We should support legislation that encourages loan forgiveness and other incentives to teach in Montana schools.

Vocational education also is key to boosting our economy. Business knows that. Educators know that. We can't forget that when making funding decisions.

As we move boldly into the New Economy, we have to be prepared by adequately training New Workers.

I implore you, as Montana's elected leaders, to give our children a world-class education so they can compete in the New Economy. Our kids - the future senator from Eureka or Representative from Sidney - deserve no less.

You have to invest before you can see a return. Education is not only an investment in our children today, but an investment that will still be delivering returns down the road so that we're not still in the same situation, the same cycle, 60 years from now.

Finance/Tax Cut/Budget

Just a quick update on the issues happening back in Washington -

In January I experienced 17 Glory Days as the Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. But, being "demoted" to Top Democrat isn't half-bad either. The new Chairman, Chuck Grassley, is a great guy to be working with. He's from Iowa - a farm state. He is not only aware of the issues affecting rural areas. He truly understands them.

President Bush has put forth a $1.6 trillion across-the-board tax cut plan, which is the main focus on Capitol Hill right now. I can tell you today - Montanans are going to get a substantial tax cut. A substantial tax cut - and they deserve it.

But, we must always protect Social Security, Medicare, and work to pay down the debt. The tax cut can only be considered in the context of those priorities.

I've met three times with President Bush on the tax cut plan. I've also met with Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan and Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill. I've told them what I just told you - that I'm taking a cautious approach. I want to make sure that the substantial tax cut fits within the budget. We must ensure that we protect Medicare and Social Security so these programs will remain solvent for generations to come. And, we must create a universal prescription drug benefit for all seniors on Medicare. I intend to do that.

Energy

I'd like to talk about another arena where we need to see change. With our energy system. Let me again reference Howard's book to show another pattern that has emerged. One that we must get ahead of this time.

The year was 1937: "Now, however, a new frightening specter hung over the community and the state. Its name was power exhaustion. The same newspaper which reported a meager rain shower early in June also reported, less conspicuously, the closing of several units of the Anaconda Company's Great Falls zinc plant because of lack of power."

Several weeks ago I met with Steve Wright, acting administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration. BPA's proposed rate hike continues to grow. Some estimates say rates could jump 225 per cent. Wright got back to me this week and has some preliminary solutions. I'll be working with him, with the congressional delegation. And I'd really like to hear any and all ideas you have.

We're dealing with a power grid that was never meant for a deregulated market. Transmission is a large part of the problem. Even where there is enough power, getting it from where it is to where it needs to be is often impossible.

We have several options to explore including investing in generation, turbines, conservation practices, and increasing power transmission capacity. I want to make sure that we protect our jobs, our economy, and our consumers. As power rates go up, we must make sure Montanans don't suffer because other states want our power.

Conclusion

So where does this leave us? With a good base to work from.

HOUSE JOURNAL
FIFTY-FOURTH LEGISLATIVE DAY - MARCH 9, 2001

Embracing change while valuing our heritage. A place to come together and concentrate on the big picture. Economic Development. New, good-paying jobs. A great education. A tax cut that is rewarding yet protects our interests. And finding solutions for the energy shortage.

I do believe that all things can be achieved through hard work and by working together. And the more people and interests that are involved, the more work than can be accomplished.

In parting, I'd like to share some final words of Joseph Kinsey Howard's with you. He understood the privilege of being a Montanan. We must never forget what we're fighting for. Now listen very carefully to the words written a half-century ago. "The sunset holds infinite promise. Fire sweeps up from behind the Rockies to consume the universe, kindles the whole horizon, and all the great sky is flame; then suddenly it falters and fades atop the distant peaks and the lonely buttes, ebbs and is lost in secret coulees. The Montanan is both humbled and exalted by this blazing glory filling his world, yet so quickly dead; he cannot but marvel that such a puny creature as he should be privileged to stand here unharmed, and watch. But the sun's fierce ecstasy will return tomorrow night. And next year..."

Together, let's embrace change and the future. We hold the sunset's "infinite promise" in the palm of our hand. The time has come. Thank you.

The committee escorted Senator Baucus from the House Chambers.

Senator Thomas moved that the joint session for the 57th legislature be adjourned. Motion carried.

Mr. Speaker in the chair. All members present. Quorum present.
